

We serve individuals with aphasia, their families, and the community throughout North Carolina with family trainings, aphasia groups, caregiver groups and more.

What is Aphasia?

Aphasia is a communication disorder that does not impact intelligence or memory, rather a person's ability to use language including speech, writing, reading, and listening. Aphasia results from injury to the brain in the form of stroke, traumatic brain injury, tumor, infection and some progressive disease processes.

Why Triangle Aphasia Project Unlimited?

Our life participation approach means that we help clients and families fully engage in the world around them. Our programs are based on hope, determination, purpose and engagement.

How We Do It

Our Aphasia groups, caregiver support programs, and family training provide compassionate environments, efficient tools, and focused services that empower you in your journey with aphasia.

About TAP Groups

TAP's groups for people with aphasia provide a welcoming and understanding environment where they can connect with one another and improve their communication skills. Our hybrid model offers both virtual and in-person groups. Groups are led by speech pathologists, music therapists or trained volunteers. Groups cater to different hobbies and passions, creating an environment that encourages life participation by building connections and community.
